About me

I want to become a personal assistant in caring for people because I find genuine fulfillment in helping others live with dignity, comfort, and independence. I'm a naturally empathetic person, and I'm drawn to roles where I can make a real difference in someone's daily life. Supporting people through their challenges — whether physical, emotional, or practical — gives me a sense of purpose that no other job does. Profoundly talented Clinical Nurse Specialist with a huge background in completing and overseeing a variety of professional assignments to develop, implement and maintain a health care delivery system for patients with eating disorders and complex mental health issues. Motivated leader with strong organizational and prioritization ability. Serves as organizational resource to ensure evidence-based practice and is accountable for resolving complex eating disorder clinical practice issues
